The Center for Strategic Research (Stratejik Araştırmalar Merkezi, SAM) conducts research on Turkish foreign policy, regional studies and international relations, and makes scholarly and scientific assessments of relevant issues. It is a consultative body of the Turkish Ministry of Foreign Affairs providing strategic insights, independent data and analysis to decision makers in government. As a nonprofit organization, SAM is chartered by law and has been active since May 1995.

SAM publishes Perceptions, an English language journal on foreign affairs. The content of the journal ranges from security and democracy to conflict resolution, and international challenges and opportunities. Perceptions is a bi-annual journal prepared by a large network of affiliated scholars. The views expressed in the articles are those of the authors and should not be attributed to the Center for Strategic Research.

PERCEPTIONS is a peer-reviewed journal and is included in the following databases and indexes: Columbia International Affairs Online, CSA Index, Current Contents of Periodicals on the Middle East, EBSCO, European Sources Online, Index Islamicus, International Political Science Abstracts (IPSA), Lancaster Index to Defense & International Security Literature, PAIS Index, Pro Quest.

Publication Ethics

Perceptions: Journal of International Affairs is a double blind peer review international academic journal which strives for meeting the highest standards of publication ethics. Publication malpractice is strictly prohibited by all possible measures.

The publication ethics of the journal is mainly based on the “Code of Conduct and Best-Practice Guidelines for Journal Editors”.

Authors: Authors should present an objective discussion of the significance of research work as well as sufficient detail and references to permit others to replicate the experiments. Fraudulent or knowingly inaccurate statements constitute unethical behavior and are unacceptable. Review articles should also be objective, comprehensive, and accurate accounts of the state of the art. The authors should ensure that their work is entirely original works, and if the work and/or words of others have been used, this has been appropriately acknowledged. Plagiarism in all its forms constitutes unethical publishing behavior and is unacceptable. Submitting the same manuscript to more than one journal concurrently constitutes unethical publishing behavior and is unacceptable. Authors should not submit articles describing essentially the same research to more than one journal. The corresponding author should ensure that there is a full consensus of all co-authors in approving the final version of the paper and its submission for publication.

Authors should also make sure that:

a) There is no conflict of interest in their submissions.

b) They have obtained the approval of the “Ethics Board/Committee” for clinical and experimental studies conducted on humans and animals (including opinion polls, surveys, interviews, observations, experiments, focus group studies). This approval should be clearly stated and documented in the article (board’s name, date and issue number).

c) Their submissions comply with the copyright regulations (especially for tables, graphs, illustrations, pictures, photographs).

Editors: Editors should evaluate manuscripts exclusively on the basis of their academic merit. An editor must not use unpublished information in the editor’s own research without the express written consent of the author. Editors should take reasonable responsive measures when ethical complaints have been presented concerning a submitted manuscript or published paper.

Reviewers: Any manuscript received for review must be treated as confidential documents. Privileged information or ideas obtained through peer review must be kept confidential and not used for personal advantage. Reviews should be conducted objectively, and observations should be formulated clearly with supporting arguments, so that authors can use them for improving the paper. Any selected referee who feels unqualified to review the research reported in a manuscript or knows that its prompt review will be impossible should notify the editor and excuse himself from the review process. Reviewers should not consider manuscripts in which they have conflicts of interest resulting from competitive, collaborative, or other relationships or connections with any of the authors, companies, or institutions connected to the papers.

The information and views set out in this publication are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the official opinion of the Center for Strategic Research (SAM) and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Turkey.
EDITORIAL

Debating Turkey’s Grand Strategy

This special issue on Turkey’s grand strategy is the outcome of a one-day workshop organized in Ankara on February 25, 2020 by the Center for Strategic Research (SAM), Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Turkey, which was attended by a group of distinguished Turkish scholars from leading international relations departments in Turkey.

The participants of the workshop discussed the various dimensions of Turkey’s grand strategy in connection with the country’s long-term political, economic and military objectives and presented their own proposals as to how the main pillars of such a grand strategy could be determined. Considering that grand strategy is broadly defined as “the calculated relationship of means to large ends,” it is quite important to reconsider this concept in light of Turkey’s own foreign policy means and ends particularly at a time when we are approaching the 100th anniversary of the foundation of the Republic.

The authors who contributed to this issue were asked to define the main parameters of a grand strategy suited to the actual and potential core interests and threats faced by Turkey in contemporary regional and global politics. In order to stimulate the widest possible academic discussion on the subject, which has so far remained largely underexplored in the literature on Turkish foreign policy, the authors were given a great degree of flexibility and freedom while articulating their ideas.

Even though the articles of this special issue do not represent the official views of SAM or the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, we believe they are all valuable contributions to the academic literature on Turkey’s grand strategy. We also hope they are going to stimulate further academic debate both in Turkey and abroad on this very important subject.

Finally, we would like to thank Dr. Şener Aktürk, who kindly agreed to compile this special issue, as well as the four distinguished scholars who contributed to the special issue with their remarkable and thought-provoking pieces on Turkey’s grand strategy.
